Esplorazione di Processi, Thread, Handle e Registro di Windows

Explore an active process.

What happened to the web browser window when the process is killed?

The web browser window closes.

Start another process

What happened during the ping process?

A child process PING.EXE listed under the cmd.exe during the ping process.

What happened to the child process conhost.exe?

The child process depends on the parent process. So when the parent process stops, the child process also stops.

Explore threads.

What type of information is available in the Properties window?

Information available includes environment variable, security information, performance information, and printable strings.
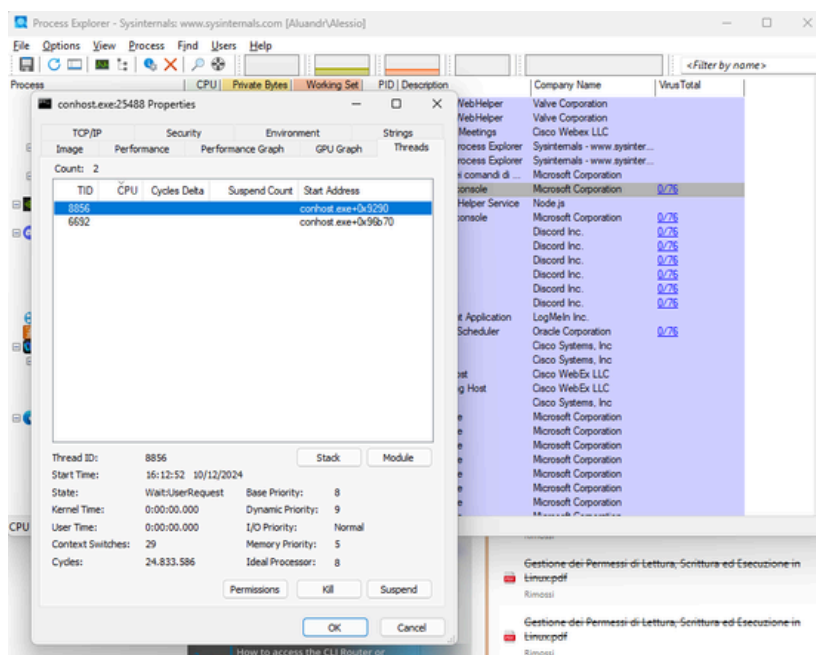

What are the handles pointing to?

The handles are pointing to files, registry keys, and threads.

What are the handles pointing to?

The handles are pointing to files, registry keys, and threads.
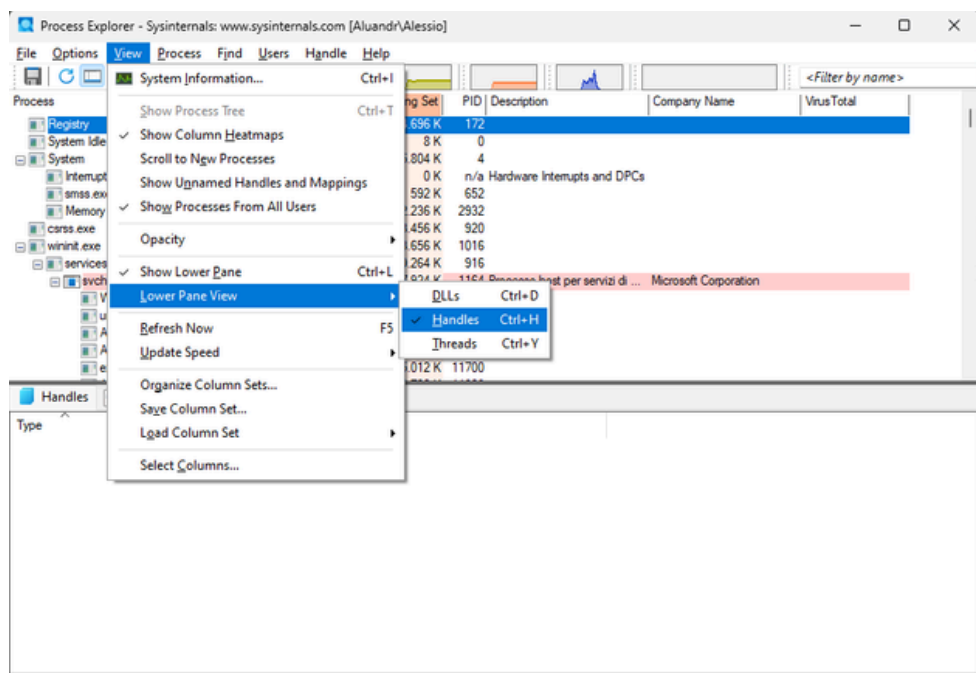

Exploring Windows Registry

What is value for this registry key in the Data column?

0x00000001(1)

When you open the Process Explorer, what did you see?

The Process Explorer License Agreement dialog box